The Role of Implants and Conventional Prosthodontics in Today’s Practice

COURSE OVERVIEW

Successful clinical dentistry is based on the integration of prosthodontic principles that ensure attainment of patients’ esthetic and functional goals. This course is designed to reinforce the key prosthodontic treatment approaches that meet the goals expected by patients and clinicians. Speakers will illustrate and outline key concepts based on evidence that will interweave diagnosis, planning, and treatment to achieve the objectives established for each patient.

At the conclusion of this course, participants will be able to:

• Make better informed decisions; be better equipped to recognize and apply the principles of comprehensive prosthodontic treatment for completely edentulous, partially edentulous, and dentate patients, including the current empirical, in vitro, and clinical evidence regarding the outcomes for tooth and implant-supported restorations.

• Discuss both traditional and innovative methods and materials for fixed, removable, and implant prosthodontics in addressing patients’ functional and esthetic expectations.

• Appreciate the reported longevity, maintenance, and complications associated with therapies in fixed, removable, and implant prosthodontics.

• Avoid implant complications, particularly related to esthetics, and improve understanding of implant esthetics and related concepts, such as osseous and soft tissue volume for implant-supported prosthetics.

• Improve individual patient attention; be aware of the growing professional appreciation for patient-centered outcomes (perceived well-being, function, esthetics, and overall quality of life) related to prosthodontic treatment and how this positively impacts practice.

WHO SHOULD ATTEND?

This course is intended for practitioners who would like to stay up to date on the latest trends as well as prosthodontists who want to become board-certified, residents who are taking the board exam, and dental professionals who are interested in the specialty.
