

ACP STAFF

Francis Ahn is the Administrative Coordinator for the finance and governance departments of the American College of Prosthodontists (ACP). With a wide and varied history of volunteering and part time work in non-profit spaces, Francis developed a deep appreciation for community serving organizations. To contribute to such organizations at a greater capacity he returned to school to earn a Master's in Business Administration. Before working with ACP, Francis worked for many art and entertainment companies with a hand in operations, marketing, and bookkeeping. In his free time Francis is an avid gardener, Classics nerd, cat and exotic animal parent, and sculptor.

Emily Deadman is the Coordinator of the Foundation & Special Projects at the American College of Prosthodontists (ACP). She is an experienced association professional that is passionate about community engagement and utilizing resources to advance and improve the experiences of those around her. Emily started her career in non-profit, international development work before transitioning to associations, where she was able to merge her fervor for civic virtue with the tangible benefits that associations offer their memberships and the communities they serve. Emily graduated Summa Cum Laude from Kuyper College in Grand Rapids, MI with a BS in Intercultural Studies. In her free time, Emily enjoys writing poetry, being outdoors, and crocheting.

Katie Koszyk is the Education & Meetings Manager at the American College of Prosthodontists (ACP). She is an experienced meeting professional that is driven by the desire to provide knowledge to others. She takes pride in creating educational opportunities that deliver the best learning experience available. Her favorite motto, "What doesn't kill you makes you stronger" demonstrates that she will rise to any challenge and find a solution. People who work with Katie appreciate her candor, caring personality, and sincerity. Katie takes greatest satisfaction in seeing everyone happy and is always grateful for the opportunity to make this happen. Prior to her career in meetings and education, Katie was an elementary school teacher for 12 years. Katie has a BS in Event Management from Florida International University, is a Certified Meeting Planner (CMP), and a Certified Digital Event Specialist. When not organizing events, Katie loves to read and appreciates spending time with her family and tending her vegetable garden.

Justinn McDaniel is the Manager of Membership and Section Engagement at the American College of Prosthodontists (ACP). She oversees daily membership operations and state sections and leads membership recruitment and retention activities. She is passionate about engaging members with the ACP, especially residents and new prosthodontists. She has been with the ACP since 2014. Prior to joining the ACP, Justinn worked in non-profit arts administration, focusing on patron services for theatres and classical music organizations. Justinn is an alum of Ithaca College, where she received a BS in Theatre Arts Management. She loves to attend live performances and sporting events and is an avid New York Mets baseball fan. She is currently studying Korean to understand the language puns in her favorite shows.

Marcus Mixon is the Education & Meetings Coordinator at the American College of Prosthodontists (ACP). His professional focuses include planning, promotion, and execution of continuing education courses and events. He is well versed in conducting webinars and in the use of Learning Management Systems (LMS) to facilitate successful online learning to a variety of different professional groups. He was born and raised locally in Evanston, IL and started working for ACP in February of 2022. Marcus received a BA in Communication with a minor in Business from the University of Missouri-Columbia (Mizzou). He enjoys watching and playing sports, specifically baseball, as he still coaches high school and travel baseball in his free time.

Sean O'Reilly is the Marketing and Meetings Coordinator at the American College of Prosthodontists. He is devoted to the planning, implementation, and promotion of the continued education events and to the execution of the marketing deliverables for the ACP. Before joining the ACP, Sean worked in public relations and communications for municipal government in Lafayette, Indiana where he was responsible in overseeing marketing and public relations needs for over 20 departments in the city and served as the liaison between the city and public. Sean graduated from the University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign in 2017, where he received a BS in Advertising with a minor in Communications with specializations in Mediated and Interpersonal Communication. While in college, Sean competed in Speech and Debate where he placed in the top 5 nationally in his event and now coaches Individual Events at Purdue University in West Lafayette in his free time.

Adam Reshan is the Interim Co-Executive Director & Director of Membership Services & Academic Relations at the American College of Prosthodontists (ACP). His areas of professional focus include strategic member retention/recruitment activities and matters related to predoctoral and advanced dental education. He is a leader in facilitating successful initiatives to a variety of volunteer driven groups. He is a native Chicagoan, second generation association professional, and has been with the ACP since 2011. Adam received a BS in Communications and Sociology from Lake Forest College. In his personal time, he enjoys spending time in nature with his wife and son, listening to music, and rooting for all non-Cubs Chicago sports teams.

ACP STAFF

Evan Summers is the Manager of Communications, Marketing, and Public Relations at the American College of Prosthodontists (ACP). Evan is very passionate about exploring the ever-changing ways people communicate, analyzing effective communication, and crafting clear messages to inform and connect individuals. Before joining the ACP, Evan worked as a multimedia journalist, TV reporter, and anchor in the suburbs of Chicago, where she was able to hone her storytelling abilities and visual production skills. Evan graduated Magna Cum Laude from North Central College in Naperville, IL, where she received a BA in Broadcast Communication. She is an active member of several professional associations, including the Chicago Chapter of the American Marketing Association. Evan enjoys trying new recipes, keeping up with important and unimportant news, and relaxing with her husband and their two cats.

Adanna Uwaegbute is the Membership and Operations Coordinator at the American College of Prosthodontists (ACP). She serves as the first point of contact with ACP members, consumers, and outside professionals. Her passion for providing excellent customer service ensures member requests are acknowledged and resolved. Her additional responsibilities include operational administration. She has a vast experience from previous roles in operational planning, strategy implementation, business development, customer relations and management. Adanna holds a BA in English and Literary studies from University of Calabar in Nigeria. She speaks fluent English, Igbo and some French. In her leisure, she likes cooking, travelling, arts, reading and listening to classical music.

Carrie E. Villa is the Interim Co- Executive Director and Director, Finance & Administration at the American College of Prosthodontists (ACP) and ACP Education Foundation. Carrie loves supporting others so they can be successful in their work and thrive as human beings. She has spent most of her career in the non-profit industry, first in social services and now in association land. Carrie is an alum of North Park University where she earned a Master of Management. When she is not earning her livelihood, she enjoys reading, swimming, and connecting with people and cats.

Rachel Yehl is the Managing Editor of The Journal of Prosthodontics, the official journal of the American College of Prosthodontists (ACP). Before joining the ACP in 2019, she spent nearly a decade managing a variety of scholarly and professional publications at Wiley. Rachel loves helping authors navigate the publishing process and working with editors to facilitate the dissemination of vital and innovative research and knowledge with readers worldwide. She is an alum of Emerson College, where she has an MA in Publishing and completed her BA at North Central College. Rachel lives in Sugar Land, Texas, with her husband, two children and two cats. She enjoys mystery novels and pop culture podcasts. She always orders dessert.